Creative Expressions: Art for the Visually Impaired

Multi-Sensory Art: Art for the Visually Impaired

Experiential learning is learning through the reflection on “doing”. It also focuses on the experience of the individual. This class will incorporate various sights, sounds, smells, movement and tactile exercises to unleash individual creativity, discussion and artistic exploration. Select items from the historical society’s collection will be incorporated into lessons linking objects and art materials (unique textures, distinct smells, sound art, and contrasting colors for those who still have limited vision, etc.) Students will make discoveries, explore objects, experiment with various art materials, and expand their creativity through the process of connecting senses with experience.

Date: Thursday, June 25

Time: 7-9pm

Location: CCHS

Cost: $30/person
